

Proposal for Research Funds to Support Conference Attendance

Applicant Name: Muhebullah Karimzada

Position: Assistant Professor

Department: School of Economics

Institution: University of Northern British Columbia

I am seeking research funding to attend and present at the annual Canadian Economic Association (CEA) Conference and the Canadian Macroeconomic Study Group (CMSG) Conference, which are vital platforms for engaging with cutting-edge research in economics and macroeconomics. Participation in these recurring events allows me to stay updated on emerging trends, innovative methodologies, and critical debates in areas directly relevant to my teaching, such as Macroeconomics, Contemporary Economic Issues, and Economics of Global Shifts. The insights gained from these conferences will be directly integrated into my course materials, enhancing empirical assignments, fostering critical thinking among students, and ensuring that the content remains timely and relevant.

These annual conferences also provide opportunities to network with leading economists, facilitating collaborations, guest lectures, and access to shared academic resources, which enrich both student learning and institutional visibility. My research is specifically designed to align with my teaching responsibilities, ensuring it does not disrupt instructional priorities by utilizing non-teaching periods. Funding is requested to cover expenses for registration, travel, accommodation, and related costs, enabling me to engage with the latest research frontiers in the field of economics while ensuring that the findings are seamlessly integrated into my teaching. This investment will strengthen the connection between research and teaching, enrich course content, and elevate our institution's profile within academic and scholarly economic communities.

Sincerely,
Muhebullah Karimzada
