FAQs

- What is UNBC's dress code?
UNBC's dress code is business casual. You may require a uniform or more formal business attire at times.
- What are the regular business hours? University business hours are typically 8:30 am to 4:30 pm, Monday to Friday. Schedules may vary depending on your department. To confirm your actual hours of work, discuss with your supervisor and refer to your Collective Agreement if applicable.
- When will I receive my first pay?
At UNBC, employees are paid bi-weekly. Your first pay cheque will be on the next regularly scheduled bi-weekly pay period. Sometimes due to paperwork delays, you may be paid on the second bi-weekly pay period after your start date. HR will notify you in this case.

~How to Access your Pay Statement On-line~

Bi-weekly pay statements at UNBC are provided electronically through Employee Web services.

To access the Employee Web, go to the UNBC home page at www.unbc.ca, click on LOGIN and then click on Employee Online Services.

If you are a new employee, you will be able to access your employee information after your first day of work using your UNBC employee ID number and PIN. The first time you access the web, your PIN will be your birth date in the format of ddmmyy (no slashes, dashes or spaces but include 0 for numbers less than 10). Once you have logged in, you will be required to enter in a new PIN which must be numerical only and at least six digits. This will then be your PIN from that date forward.

If you are a returning employee, your employee ID number and PIN will not have changed since your last use. If you have never logged into the Employee Web services, you will need to request a PIN reset by sending an email to hr-webinfo@unbc.ca. You will receive email notification once this has been done. Once you have logged in again, you will be required to enter in a new password which must be numerical only and at least six digits. This will then be your PIN from that date forward.

Once you have gained access to the Employee Web services, click on Employee Services and then Pay Information to view your pay statements, current direct deposit allocation and year to date information for earnings and deductions.

If you experience problems with your PIN or have any questions regarding your pay, please contact Human Resources Extension 5521. Faculty should contact Human Resources at Extension 5630 or 5605.

Employee Safety Orientation

All employees must complete the safety orientation within the first month of work. Click here to view and complete the Safety Orientation Checklist.

Please send the completed checklist to safety@unbc.ca

Please download the UNBC Safe App to a smart phone and enable notifications. This provides access to resources and processes, including our Safe Walk program, Incident Reporting and will allow you to receive messages if an emergency occurs on campus.

Please sign up for Announce messages as this is another way that information is shared, should a crisis occur. Laboratory staff can also sign up for labs@lists.unbc.ca by clicking here.

Security, First Aid, Parking

Contact Campus Security for a response to any injury or emergency.

If someone is in medical crisis (unresponsive, choking, no pulse...) and requires an Ambulance, or if you need Police or the Fire Department, call Campus Security and dial 911. When using a UNBC networked phone, you will need to dial 9-911.
